Off-Season Program 26/27

(2010s)

Off-Season Program 26-27

It is important that you enjoy your rest during the off season break and recover both physically and mentally.

The goal of this programme is to help you come back to pre-season in great condition and ready for the 2026-2027 season. Completing this programme during your time off will also help to reduce your risk of injury and allow you to cope with high intensity football activities as soon as you return to training.

Performing other activities which you might not have the time to do during the season such as cycling and swimming or indoor sports such as badminton are also good ways of staying mobile and active during this rest period. Although take into account how often you do these activities, remember this time is to recover first and foremost!

While the off season is often a time for holidays and over-indulgence of foods, it is important to remember to maintain good dietary habits. You will not require as many calories as when you are training and playing at high intensity during the season.

You should also be careful if you are on holiday and performing this programme due to the increased heat. Try to perform activities at cooler periods of the day such as the morning. Also ensure that you drink plenty of fluids, preferably water!

It is also important to remember to warm up properly before you begin any activity. A dynamic warm up (similar too before training) should be completed which lasts around 10 minutes and allow you to begin to break into a sweat. Once you have completed your activity make sure to spend around 10 to 15 minutes performing static stretching or foam rolling to help maintain flexibility.

Pre-Season Training begins Thursday 18th June

RPE Scale And Off-Season Training

The scale on the right indicates the difficulty of the activity/day that you are doing.

With increase difficulty means that the training should feel harder/ push harder and you should follow the session/day with adequate recovery time too.

Days off are 0, TAKE THE REST.

Uppers days are a 2-3 but still push the exercises to make progress/ maintain strength.

Single Sessions are a 5-6 but the run or gym on that day should still be carried out well.

Double Sessions AND the 5km Benchmark Run will be tough. High effort AND more overall strain post session 24 and 48hrs after.

Pre-Activations are to be done at the beginning pre warm-up for all running sessions.

Mobility sessions are to be complete before gym sessions.

RPE SCALE
1	Very Light Activity (anything other than complete rest)
2-3	Light activity (feels like you can maintain for hours, easy to breath and carry on a conversation)
4-5	Moderate Activity (feel like you can exercise for long periods of time, able to talk and hold short conversations)
6-7	Vigorous Activity (on the verge of becoming uncomfortable, short of breath, can speak a sentence)
8-9	Very Hard Activity (difficult to maintain exercise intensity, hard to speak more than a single word)
10	Max Effort (feels impossible to continue, completely out of breath, unable to talk)
